"ON TO CONSTANTINOPLE," ALLES' SLOGAN AS MARDANELLES FORTS FALL

But the Task of Forcing the Waterway Is a Difficult One, British Experts Admit.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—On to Constantinople is the slogan of the British naval experts today as a result of the official announcement which the Admiralty has just made that the Mardanelles had been forced for a distance of about thirty miles by the British fleet.

EXPLOSION OF MINES.
The village of Bourges is extended to the eastward by a number of outlying houses which are crowded by the first line of trenches of the German army. A very strong position, which is a first instance of a position of such strength, was held by the German army. The village of Bourges is now in our hands. St. Etienne was seized by the German by a surprise attack on February 8. An advance on our part in this region menaced the position of the German in the forest and the mountains and indirectly also their position at St. Etienne.

FINGER PRINTS WELD CASE CLEW

Two persons identified by their fingerprints today as the assassin of the late John D. Rockefeller, a prominent industrialist, were identified by the Boston Police Department. The fingerprints were taken from the bodies of the two men, who were found in the city of New York, and were compared with the fingerprints of the late John D. Rockefeller, which were taken from his body after his death. The results of the comparison showed that the fingerprints of the two men were identical to those of the late John D. Rockefeller.

"BILLY" SUNDAY CAMPAIGN BEGUN

The Billy Sunday Boston campaign, declared the Rev. James C. Fiske, secretary of the commission of Boston ministers and laymen, which has returned from calling upon the household evangelist in Philadelphia.

"We are perfectly satisfied with our trip," he continued, "and it has more than ever convinced the city of the need of the revival. Billy Sunday in Boston. Some people have asked me since my return why we did not get the evangelist next Fall instead of a year from now."

"People can not understand the vast machinery of preparation for the coming of the evangelist. Boston will be surprised to know all the details which are essential to make ready for Billy Sunday. So we say the Sunday Campaign is begun."

ARGUE AGAINST FRANK'S APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—That Leo M. Frank was not deprived of due process of law by being directed to stay out of court when the jury in the Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia, returned its verdict condemning him guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan, the Atlanta factory girl, was the argument today made in the United States Supreme Court by counsel for the State of Georgia.

Louis Marshall, attorney for Frank, concluded soon after court convened, and the representatives of Georgia began their effort to convince the high tribunal that Frank's appeal from the decision of the Federal Court of Georgia denying him a writ of habeas corpus, should not be granted.

The argument for the State of Georgia was made by Attorney-General Warren Grace and Solicitor-General Hugh Forester. The justices of the court closely followed the attorneys, asking many questions as to the points raised.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis
Sir William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1902), on page 201:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. . . . In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a new tissue is formed, while the smaller cavities are healed by the formation of new tissue. In such conditions alone should the term 'healing' be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of new methods in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of the treatment in this and other forms of tuberculosis should be the basis of the fact that it is a new and a very important discovery.

FINAL Clean-Up Sale

of Our Entire Stock of

OVERCOATS

At Unusually Drastic Price Reductions

Taking over the Kuppenheimer surplus stock and the Fitzgerald stock on top of our regular stock has left us with far too many Overcoats for this time of the year. But our policy calls for a complete clearance, and the only way we know of to accomplish it is to knock the bottom out of the prices.

Our Overcoat Clean-up always creates a big stir, but this year the size of the stock, the extent of the price reductions and the phenomenal rise in wool all combine to make this the most extraordinary sale yet.

So if you'd like to save $6.50 to $20 on a bang-up good Overcoat that you can wear all next winter and the winter after, you'd better come today or tomorrow, while the assortment is still good, for they're going fast.

These coats are all wool, well tailored and desirable in every way, and the man who buys one now will never have cause to regret it.

BUY IT NOW AND INSURE IMMEDIATE PROSPERITY!

BUY IT NOW!

Join the movement that, spreading over the country, will insure immediate prosperity.

The best way to save money is to buy intelligently.

Buying intelligently means buying when prices are low.

This method is practised by every successful business man, by every great industrial corporation in the country.

Today you can buy automobiles, pianos, many kinds of articles cheaply because the concerns that make them bought materials when prices were low and gave their customers the benefit of their foresight.

You can buy with equal wisdom. Prices for almost everything are low today. They will not remain low very long.

With the increase of business that is bound to come all prices will advance.

Then, when you get the things which you or your family have long desired, it will mean a far greater outlay.

Join the BUY IT NOW movement for your own sake and for the sake of the country. Set factory spindles in motion, help to give employment to the thousands of men who are ready to go to work.

You can learn more about the movement by a talk with the grocer, or the department store proprietor, or the dealer in any commodity.

They will show you how cheaply you can buy now, and they will prove to you that you will not be able to buy anything like as cheaply six months from now.

They will give you prices on household supplies of all kinds, on furniture, carpets, clothing, luxuries, on almost everything that is for sale—prices that will surprise you if you have been keeping away from the shops because you thought you couldn't afford to buy anything.

As a matter of fact, the thousands and thousands of people who are today in receipt of good incomes or who have money in the bank cannot afford not to do their buying now.

The BUY IT NOW movement is merely a movement for wise investing, for the saving of money. It merely encourages prudence and foresight, the kind of prudence and foresight which have made big business men rich.

There is as much money in the country as there ever was. There will soon be more wealth here. Europe will demand all that the United States has to sell.

Prosperity will soon be here.

You can hasten it. You can, incidentally, reap for yourself the profit that comes from buying cheaply.

It is a great, an important and a patriotic movement.

Join it.

BUY IT NOW.

What Bread Means to Mankind

It is the Chief Source of Human Energy, and Without It Civilization and Progress Could Not Exist

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

All wealth comes from the earth. Gold is found in the grass roots in Alaska or blasted from the ledges of California and Nevada. The steel and stone from which skyscrapers, railroads and bridges are built must be mined or quarried before they can be converted into wealth.

But most important of all are the vast bread mines of the West, where the wheat roots dig wealth from the soil, and by a miracle, which no human mind can understand, convert it into the solid spheres of grain, from which we make bread.

Through all the ages bread has been the most important food staple, supplying to rich and poor the fuel of energy—physical and mental.

Today, when thousands of the products of land and ocean have been converted into food, it is as important, if not more so, than it was when the prehistoric savages crushed in stone mortars the cereals from which they made their rude loaves.

Because of its composition and digestibility, bread is a useful, wholesome food—a food without which the human race could not exist.

An investigation into the extent to which bread is used, brought about by the advance in price of flour, developed the fact that it constitutes 50 per cent. of the food of the poor, and from 6 to 25 per cent. of the food of the more prosperous.

A physician living in a tenement district, who as a member of a board of education has made a careful study of conditions, reports that 75 per cent. of the food eaten by his neighbors is bread in some form or other.

The laborer earning $1.75 a day spends a dollar a day for food for his family of four or five children, and half of that dollar goes for bread.

As long as children can obtain good bread they will thrive, even though very little meat is added to their diet.

In the grains that are mined by the wheat plants from the soil is almost every useful constituent of human food—food that builds muscle, and food that builds brain.

In a great institution in one of the great American cities the daily diet of men who do hard work is as follows:

Fresh meat	10 ounces
Fresh vegetables	10 ounces
Potatoes	10 ounces
Bread	24 ounces

These men, who come to the institution weak and debilitated from dissolute life, are turned out strong and healthy, and of far stronger mental and moral fibre than when they are admitted.

And all the time they are charges of the city bread constitutes almost 50 per cent. of their diet.

Since men first began to turn the cereal grains into food, discarding the husks, and using only the highly nutritive portions, the human race began to progress toward civilization.

Today the advancement of any race is regulated by the food it eats, and the greatest progress has been made by races using bread as an important part of their daily fare.

Unlike most other foods, there is no waste in bread. All of it is digested, assimilated and transmuted into bone and brain and muscle. None is left to clog the digestive tract and to breed serious disorders.

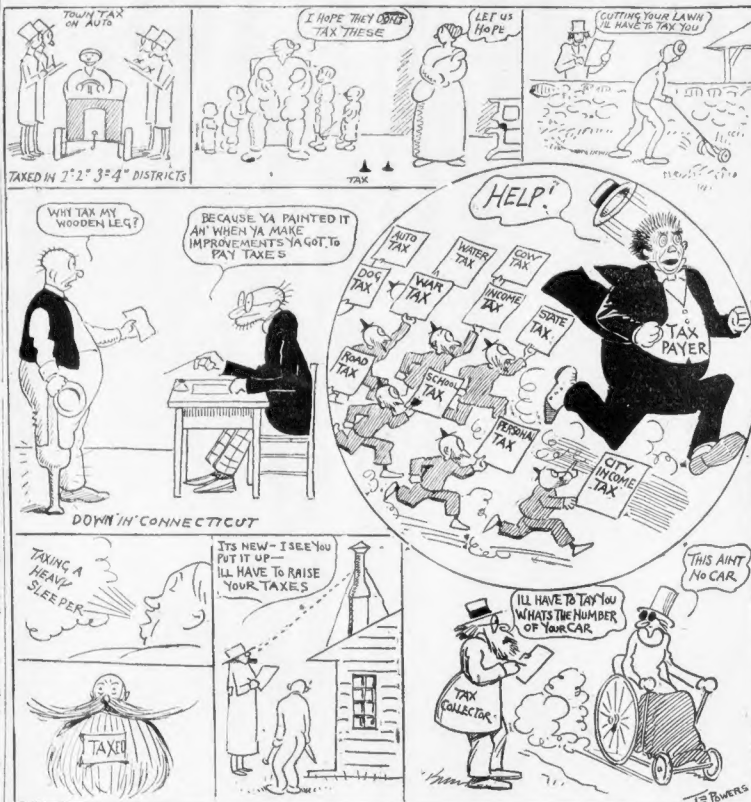

Give a nation plenty of bread and it will prosper and progress. Give the poor bread in abundance and they will have the strength and courage to fight against their poverty.

Any condition that arises which necessitates an advance in the price of bread is a serious condition.

It is of the utmost importance to humanity that bread, the staff of life, should never be beyond the reach of any of the people.

The Smelting Pot

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

FORTH from this great smelting pot,
Where all nations are flung in,
Shall by Time's strong hand be brought
Types to make the whole world kin.
Fling them, fling them in,
Gold is mingled with the dross;
There shall be more gain than loss;
North and south and east and west,
All shall give us of their best.
Destiny controls the pot;
Fling them in.

Three centuries of unmix'd blood have left
Our brave New England Puritans bereft
Of impulse and emotion; or afraid
To give those tender feelings which God made
In all his children any outward sign.
They pluck life's grapes, but dare not drink its wine;
Face boldly swords, but quail before a kiss;
And miss most in not knowing what they miss.
They swear by honor, and they cling to duty,
But veil their eyes and turn away from beauty.
Fearing it may be Pagan. In the fine,
Fair faces of their women lurk no sign
Of human passion; yet their love will stand
Defying death if Duty so command.

Into the clear, cool waters of these souls
Year after year Vesuvius lava rolls.
Peering beyond the future's rim, I seem
To see the new New England in a dream.

Old ever youthful Italy has brought
Unto our shores to lure our feet along
A merrier pathway, music, dance and song.
And she has taught
Passion to produce; left a touch of fire
On lips too pale; and darkened eyes (as gray
As Rocks which guard a calm New England Bay)
With smouldering flames, that speak the heart's desire;
Bounded the sharp, fine outlines with the grace
Of southern contours; and to virtue lent
The subtle charm of Latin Temperament.

A strong new race,
A race sublime,
With sterling virtues and soft human hearts,
God worshippers and lovers of the arts
And devotees of beauty, joy and mirth,
That optimistic alchemist old Time
Has fashioned for the earth.

All hail the coming stock
Of great Vesuvius and Plymouth Rock!

Responsibility in Friendship

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

THERE is great responsibility in friendship. We are apt to forget that we owe much to a friend who comes into our life. We like to be cheered and stimulated ourselves in the companionship of congenial friends, but we do not always think what we may be to them, what they may be looking for, waiting or hoping for; just a word of counsel. We are often too self-absorbed to see what they want, or, perhaps, we are selfishly indifferent, provided we have been pleased and cheered ourselves. Truly, we are not fit to be a friend until we realize responsibility in friendship. The essential thing is to be a friend.

A word may save a friend from a foolish or an imprudent action, or a very grave mistake. But we need to have much tact in speaking the word. A gentle suggestion often helps. Friendship does not take for granted the rough telling of faults, or the making of harsh criticisms. If it is necessary to speak a strong word which will arouse conscience and clear the way to nobler things, the word must be spoken bravely. A true friend is not one who flatters, not one who is blind to our faults, but one who inspires us to do our best. To give strength to a friend in time of weakness or discouragement is a glorious privilege.

"I shall never quite understand your interest in me," said a girl to an older woman, in a talk which had given her courage and inspiration. "Few friends would take the trouble to be so kind and sympathetic."

"Try to understand that I like to be trusted, like to help," said the other. "Anything that I have to give, or share, in experience, knowledge of the world, insight into the problems of life and character is given with glad service."

"Problems, yes, there seems to be plenty of problems and struggles," said the girl.

"Life would be dull without them," replied her friend. "We have our problems and our fights of different kinds continually. It is worth many fights not to make a mistake."

Inklings and Thinkings

By WEX JONES

Secretary Daniels served pineapple cider at a naval banquet. All right; but it was a cruel joke to serve it in champagne glasses.

Thaw to help German forces—Headline.
A busy little chap, isn't he?

Why should the engineers holler because there aren't more of 'em in Congress? They're a lot more useful out of it.

All these diplomatic notes are "friendly but firm." We'd really like to read a note deemed unfriendly by a diplomatist.

Peace advocates assert that international marriages cause war. She might have made her statement more general.

A publisher announces "Mushroom Town," by Oliver Onions. Sounds like a good catalogue.

"It seems hard that everyone should have to fight so constantly," the girl said.

"But one learns many things in the process," answered the older woman. "My own own efforts life becomes better and fuller and character is built up."

Confidence in friendship need to be entrusted only to a strong, sympathetic nature. A friend needs to be tested before one's fondest thoughts are divulged. It is safe not to be hasty in rushing into intimacies. Girls too often find excitement in thrilling outpourings to each other, overlooking confidences to a new friend. The friend who is tested, whom the better we know the more completely we trust, will be true, loyal, generous-hearted, never disappointing and never hurting us. The friend on whom we may depend will not make professions of affection and turn away in moments of perplexity or be cold in time of our joy, but will show sincere interest in our life, giving sympathy in hours of distress and in hours of happiness. It is easy to be sorry for a friend's misfortune, but to rejoice honestly in a friend's success or prosperity is a true test of friendship and part of friendship's responsibility.

In-Shoots

Some of these conservative men seem to get pretty near the class line.

The human year cake is a small affair, but he can occasionally stir up a lot of trouble.

A good business manager is the one who manages to let the other fellow do the work.

Lots of girls who do not want to be angry will cling to the habit of cleaning gloves with gasoline.

When looking about us we are occasionally convinced that the fool killer is the latest man on the job.

The heartless man often has a liver that causes him just as much trouble.

Even when it is deserved the knock generally proves to be a boost.

It is useless to try to say good things about your enemies. If they were good they wouldn't be enemies.
